ECONOMIC COMMISSION FOR AFRICA
Fifteenth session/sixth meeting of the Conference of Ministers
Addis Ababa, 9-12 April 1980

PROGRESS REPORT ON THE UNITED NATIONS TRUST FUND
FOR AFRICAN DEVELOPMENT

UNITED NATIONS TRUST FUND FOR AFRICAN DEVELOPMENT

In recent years, there has been a growing demand by the member States that the Economic Commission for Africa should shift the emphasis of its work programme from basic studies and research to operational activities which would intensify co-operative efforts for accelerating development at the subregional and other multinational levels, as well as encourage and promote such development programmes and projects at the national level which are likely to stimulate action by African countries achieve effective economic and technical co-operation among themselves.

2. Resolutions adopted by the ECA Conference of Ministers and the programmes of work and priorities approved at various sessions of the Commission during the past six years reflect a strong awareness, of the need not only to strengthen economic and technical co-operation among African countries but also to take collective action in mobilizing the resources required to achieve the objective of making African countries more self-reliant in attaining their development goals.

3. So far, a large proportion of the resource requirements for advancing the development of African countries is still being provided by the developed countries of the world and this source of development assistance is becoming increasingly expensive as a result of world inflationary trends and other factors (political and economic) operating in the developed countries themselves.

4. A significant step in the direction of self-reliance by African countries was taken by the fourth meeting of the ECA Conference of Ministers (thirteenth session of the Economic Commission for Africa), held in Kinshasa (Zaire) in February/March 1977, when the Conference adopted resolution 288(XIII), requesting the Executing Secretary to convene a Pledging Conference of African Government Plenipotentiaries within 60 days following the fourth meeting of the Conference of Ministers in order to review arrangements for voluntary contributions by States members of the Commission and to submit a report to the meeting of the Executive Committee immediately following the Conference on the outcome of the Conference of Plenipotentiaries, on the funds received and on the uses to which such funds were being put.

5. At the Lagos Pledging Conference held in April 1977, pledges amounting to approximately $US3 million were made by 14 African Governments and, since that date, additional pledges have been communicated by other African Governments on various occasions. As at 31 December 1978 the position was that out of the 49 States members of ECA, pledges totalling approximately $US 5 million had been made by 24 African Governments. Only an amount of $US1,634,193 was actually been paid excluding pledges made in kind by the Upper Volta (estimated at $US819,000) and by Zambia (estimated at $US153,000).

6. In view of the important role assigned to the Multinational Programming and Operational Centres (MULPOCs) for co-operative action in promoting and accelerating development at the subregional level in Africa, it is expected that, through their active participation in the pledging conferences organized for the mobilization of resources, the member States covered by the various MULPOCs serving the African region will be able to assume responsibility for a significant proportion of the cost of the development programmes and projects established at the level of the supreme legislative body of their respective intergovernmental organizations. The situation as at 31 December 1979, with regard to the Commission's efforts to mobilize the resources necessary for the execution of the development programme established by its member States, is far from encouraging. This discouraging state of affairs is illustrated in table 2 giving the status of pledges as at 31 December 1979 as well as the contributions actually paid by them with regard to their pledges.
7. At the Lagos Pledging Conference held in April 1977, it was reported that the estimated resource requirements was about $US29,710,000 in respect of the budgetary requirements for the implementation of the Commission's work programme for the biennium 1977-1979, approved by the ECA Conference of Ministers at its fourth meeting held in Kinshasa (Zaire) in February/March 1977. When the estimated resource gap of $US29,710,000 was calculated shortly before the Lagos Conference, account could not have been taken of additional budgetary requirements resulting from subsequent decisions of the legislative bodies of the various MULPOCs which have established work programmes, covering their respective areas of operations, which require fairly substantial resources for their execution.
8. At the first Pledging Conference held in Lagos in April 1977, it was agreed that such Pledging Conferences should be held once in every two years during their biennial sessions of the ECA Conference of Ministers, following approval of the Commission's programme of work and priorities by the Conference of Ministers.
9. The second Pledging Conference of African Government Plenipotentiaries was held on 28 March 1979 in Rabat, Morocco.
10. It was attended by plenipotentiaries from 39 African Governments and two African banking institutions.
11. In making their pledges several participants expressed support for the Commission and its activities, and their belief in the rapid economic development of the region by the year 2000 through the collective efforts of African countries as shown on the summary of pledges made during the second Pledging Conference (see table 1).

12. By Conference of Ministers resolution 331(XIV) on UNTFAD adopted at the fifth Meeting of the ECA Conference of Ministers held in Rabat (Morocco) from 22 to 28 February 1979. Governments of member States were urged to contribute generously to the Trust Fund with a view to provide the resources needed to execute the approved work programme based on the Commission's policy for collective self-reliance.

13. The same resolution requested, member States to make regular and prompt payment of the pledged contributions in order to ensure the execution of priority projects according to the approved timetable. As it is shown in the following tables a large amount of the pledged contributions are still not deposited.

14. During the period under review, African Governments have pledged a total of $US4,457,197 to augment the funds the secretariat has received from other sources to carry out its programme of work and priorities. To date, $US1,438,599 has been received in cash payments and this sum has been allocated towards the implementation of the first phase of the following projects crucial to the rational engineered development of the African region: trade in food and livestock products in West Africa; regional food plan (Agriculture); the Regional Centre for Industrial Design and Manufacturing, basic metals and engineering industries, the chemical industry development programme, and the building materials development programme (Industry); Conference on the Development and Utilization of Mineral Resources (Natural resources); Preferential Trade Area for Eastern and Southern Africa (Economic co-operation); Higher Institute for Technical Training Research and Material Procurement and Supply Management Survey of Inter-relationship and the subregional Graduate Schools of Business Management and Finance (Management and Manpower); and the Conference of Plenipotentiaries establishing the African Trust Fund, (see table 3).

15. In conclusion it should be emphasized that there exists a problem in financing the approved work programmes of the secretariat, a problem which requires international recognition and action to deal with it. Although the Commission has made every effort to raise funds through donor Governments and institutions to supplement the regular budget, the gap for financial requirements to implement the secretariat's work programmes still remains. The secretariat provides a means through which international funds can be channelled and utilized for the advancement of economic and social life in Africa. It is through this pooling of resources on a subregional and regional basis that an effective impact can be achieved for accelerated development in Africa. The secretariat has therefore cause to expect substantial increases in its regular budget and increased participation from Governments and institutions in financing its work programmes through extrabudgetary resources.

16. It is imperative, therefore, if meaningful efforts are to be made to implement the programme of work and priorities established by the intergovernmental organizations responsible for the activities of the various MULPOCs in the African region, that African Governments give a more practical demonstration of the Commission's policy of collective self-reliance by participating effectively at forthcoming Pledging Conferences and designating their plenipotentiaries with the necessary credentials and full powers to pledge their Governments' contributions at these Conferences. It is also essential that outstanding pledges should be honoured as a matter of extreme urgency. It is accordingly hoped that the Governments concerned will arrange to effect payment of these as soon as possible.
